PROPOSITION AGAINST CO. CONTROL

Lake County Supervisors Pass Resolutions Against New Bill

PROVIDES SOME FAT JOBS

Now Before State Legislature Which Could Make County Officials Answerable to State Officers

The Lake County board of supervisors at its recent session placed itself on record as unanimously opposed to the new before the state legislature which provides for a state official who directly have charge of the county roads, finances, etc., of every county in the state. In short, the measure, in the minds of many county officials, including supervisors, is a step to remove individuality and personal responsibility of county officials elected by the people of the various counties, and entrust the county control of its own affairs. The bill is known as senate bill 8, introduced by Mr. Hay, Jan. 23, now in the hands of the committee on county and township organization. Lake County Supervisors—that bill seemingly interferes with the business of a county conducting their business and therefore, it seems it should be given most careful consideration by the legislature before passed.

Now is the resolution as passed by supervisors and interviews with Lake County legislators at Springfield, declare they would like to hear from Lake County people how they feel about the proposed measure.

Supervisor Welch presented the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, a bill known as Senate Bill 8, introduced in the present of our Legislature, providing for an appointment by the Governor of a county official, who in turn shall have power vested in him to appoint and remove supervisors and to have control of all accounts of the different counties of the state, and

Whereas, such bill does not require such official nor the several supervisors to be appointed by him shall and any previous training or experience pertaining to the several counties who accounts are to be examined and controlled by them, nor of the State pertaining to counts, and Whereas, the expense of maintaining such new department is to be collected from the counties of the State, thereby increasing the expense to the taxpayers and

Whereas, we believe the best interest of our people require that the control of our County of Antioch remain where now reposed by the County Boards of our State, and the County Boards of the several counties who are direct representatives of the people of the County and support such offices can better be relied upon to judge of local conditions.

Be it resolved, by the Board of Supervisors of Lake County, Illinois, in regular session assembled, that we are hereby opposed to said bill believing it to be contrary to the best interest of the people of the County, and all upon our Senator and Representatives in the General Assembly of this State to use all honorable means to prevent the passage of said bill, to the end that the control of our County affairs remain where now reposed by the County Boards of our State, and the County Boards of the several counties who are direct representatives of the people of the County and support such offices can better be relied upon to judge of local conditions.

It is further resolved that these resolutions be spread upon the records of said County and that the County Clerk be and he is hereby directed to furnish a copy thereof to our Senator and Representatives in the House of Representatives from this district that they be advised concerning our attitude toward said bill, and that the County Clerk be and he is hereby directed to carry out and resolution adopted.

MILK PRODUCERS SIGN

Milk Company at Gurnee Agrees to Pay $1.48 1/2 for the Six Months

Elgin, Illinois, March 15.—The price of milk as fixed today by the Borden company, is a disappointment to the farmers, and something of a revolt has taken place. The buying combine does not meet the request of the Producers' association, but fixes an average price of $1.34 1/2 for the ensuing six months. The rate by month, per 100 pounds is as follows: April, $1.50; May, $1.30; June, $1.10; July, $1.30; August, $1.50; September, $1.45. A premium of 10 cents per 100 is to be paid on milk testing 3.8 in butter fat. This average of $1.34 1/2 per 100 is only 8 cents more than was paid last summer, and the general disposition among producers was to refuse to sign contracts for the season. They had set their mark at $1.50 as the minimum. The new price is a fraction under 3 a quart.

A number of farmers have refused to sign and many of them gathered for a discussion of the situation.

Milk producers of Lake county who sell to the Bowman Bottling company of Gurnee have won a decided victory. This became apparent Monday morning when the Bowman people gave out their schedule of prices for the ensuing six months. The average per month is $1.48 1/2 per 100 pounds which is greatly in contrast to the price of $1.34 given out by the Borden company of Chicago a few days ago. The price established by the Bowman people includes stable inspection which adds 10 cents per 100 pounds.

Following is the price given out by the Bowman people for the next six months: April, $1.60; May, $1.25; June, $1.15; July, $1.35; August, $1.50; September, $1.55.

The ten per cent bonus must be added to these prices in order to reach the amount which will be paid to all producers who come under the stable test and practically all of them do. In addition the farmers receive a bonus for all milk that tests over 3.6 butter fat.

The Lake County Milk Producers' association has been making a fight for higher prices and to this insistent demand is attributed the raise in price given by the company. Last year the Bowman people paid but $1.26 per hundred for milk and no bonus was given for stable inspection. This year the association demanded $1.50 per hundred. The Bowman people compromised by giving a price which nearly reached this figure.

Supervisor Ralph Chittenden of Gurnee, one of the directors of the Milk Producers' association declared that the price given out by the Bowman people is perfectly satisfactory and he says all producers will sign up. It is the highest price paid for milk in this vicinity.

HOLD TEACHERS' MEETING

Contest in Spelling Goes to Antioch Pupils

The teacher's and about thirty-five pupils of the Antioch school attended the local teacher's meeting at Lake Villa last Friday. In the morning there were very interesting and instructive class demonstrations by Miss Mathews, Miss Doolittle and Mr. Lentzner.

The afternoon session was given over to the first of a series of local contests in spelling and penmanship that County Superintendent Simpson is planning to hold in the county. The schools represented were: Lake Villa, Antioch and rural schools of the town. Fourteen pupils were in the spelling contest, the words being taken from Hunt's Progressive Speller. The grades of Ivah Radtka and Daniel Lewis of the Antioch School and Mary Sheehan of the Oakland school were so close that these pupils were required to spell twenty-five words each in addition to the written and oral words already spelled. Ivah ranked first, Daniel second and Mary third.

Daniel Lewis and Jannette Wallace were the Antioch representatives in the penmanship contest. The writing papers will be graded by Mr. C. A. Faust the author of the "Faust Muscular Movement Writing."

VOLIVA AGAIN ATTACKED

Progressive League Seeks to Show Inconsistency in his Actions

QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Charge Voliva Lives on Fat of the Land on the Hard Earned Money of His Followers

"Let the Galled Jade Winc."

Under this caption the Progress League of Zion City has just issued another large handbill which is anything but complimentary to Wilbur Glenn Voliva. In a closing paragraph it is urged upon the voters of Zion to elect the Independent ticket. This bill is one of a series that have been issued during the last two or three weeks. Each succeeding bill has been a little more vituperative than the one which preceded. This league is making a supreme effort to defeat the Theocratic ticket at the polls.

Following are a few of the questions and answers contained in the latest bill:

Who is just now, for political reasons only, striving with Mephistophelian craft and cunning to convince the people that he and John Alexander Dowie were always in perfect harmony and accord with reference to church policy and general moral conduct?—Wilbur Glenn Voliva.

Who was expelled from the "Christian Catholic church in Zion"—Wilbur Glenn Voliva.

By whom was he expelled?—By John Alexander Dowie.

For what was he expelled?—For breach of fiduciary trust and for general bad character.

Who charged John Alexander Dowie with immoral conduct and denounced him publicly, when he was hardly a year in his grave, as a "Royal Backslider"?—Wilbur Glenn Voliva.

Who objected to the practice of publishing the portrait of John Alexander Dowie, and said: "When you see my picture in print and sticking around in public places, you may know that I have gone to the devil."—Wilbur Glenn Voliva.

And whose picture adorns public places in Zion City now, to the intense amusement and disgust of all right thinking people, and what is the logical and unescapable influence?

The bill then goes on to charge that Voliva has imported "floaters" for the purpose of augmenting his forces on election day, then showing himself a violator of the non-smoking ordinance.

The following paragraphs indicate very clearly the animosity felt against Voliva by the Progress League:

Would sane, sensible people choose a man who has been convicted of willful slander in courts of justice and who is under indictment for perjury and conspiracy by a grand jury of his countrymen; would sincere Christian people of their own motion choose such a person to lead them into paths of truth and righteousness?

Who lives sumptuously on the fat of the land from "tithes" contributed largely by hard worked people able to earn only very meager wages?

Who boasted that he could "live on the smell of a greasy rag" thus insinuating that such nourishment was sufficient for "the common herd" and that the practice of such abominable habits would augment the sum total of "tithes" contributed to "Zion?"

OFFICER IS A GOOD SHOT

Waukegan Officer Shoots Man in the Leg Who Tries Hard to Escape

KNOCKS COMPANION DOWN

Runs Away From Pursuing Officer and When Captured Tries to Lay out the Officer

Wm. Coaxter, a Finlander, was shot in the leg by Officer Patrick Salmon on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock when the foreigner started in to beat up the officer after he had taken hold of him to arrest him for assaulting one John Kokony, 726 Caroline Place.

The victim was injured in such a manner that he was rushed to the hospital where Dr. Bellows administered anti-toxin in hopes of preventing blood poisoning. The bullet was found to have passed clear through the fleshy part of his leg.

Kokony, the victim of Coaxter's assault, was knocked cold by his assailant and he lay limp on the walk in front of Charles Holmstein's saloon, while the officer pursued Coaxter. Later Kokony was taken to the station where he was kept over night. It was found that he had a battered face, two or three teeth having been knocked out by his assailant. Kokony stated that he did not know what caused the other man to attack him. He says he emerged from the saloon and Coaxter assaulted him before he knew it, knocking him cold on the walk where he lay unconscious all the time the officer was chasing the man he later shot.

Officer Salmon happened to be near Lake street when he saw the fracas and heard people yelling for the police. He hastened to the spot but Coaxter had made his getaway and the officer started after him. He was led in a roundabout course down Marion street, the culprit running through alleys and across lots. Officer Salmon, however, figured correctly when he doubled up on Coaxter and hurried around Oak street, going down as far as Liberty street. There, sure enough, he saw Coaxter coming west, and as the fellow saw him he sought to escape but the officer soon had hold of him. Coaxter, a powerful Finlander, hauled back and struck the officer a blow in the face which staggered him but did not send him down as it had the other victim.

After striking the officer, Coaxter started to run and the officer started to run and the officer drew his revolver. He states that he fired once in the air to scare the fellow and make him halt but he kept running, whereupon he took aim at his legs and fired. The offender was winged all right for he dropped with a yell of pain.

Blood spurted from his wounds for the bullet had penetrated the fleshy part of his leg, passing clear through. The officer then telephoned headquarters and the White-Tobin ambulance was called, the victims being rushed to the hospital.

The shooting caused a big sensation down town as reports were that an officer had killed a man.

DIES OF TYPHOID FEVER

Ira Blair Succumbs to Dread Disease at a Chicago Hospital

Last Saturday evening at six o'clock, Ira Blair, a former resident of this vicinity, succumbed to the ravages of typhoid fever, his death occurring at the People's hospital in Chicago.

The deceased was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blair, formerly of Channel, but now of Necedah, Wis. He was born December 15, 1894, and most of his life was spent in Antioch and vicinity. At ice cutting season he was employed at one of the ice houses in this region and at the close of that work he went to Chicago, to visit his brother, William, and while there he was taken ill with typhoid and was taken to the hospital. The fever appeared to have left and he was supposed to have made rapid strides toward recovery when he suffered a relapse and did not again revive.

The funeral was held on Tuesday at Solon with Rev. Stixrud officiating and burial in the Solon cemetery. He is survived by his father and mother, one brother William besides other relatives and friends.

HUNTERS ARE NEAR DEATH WHEN BOAT UPSET SUNDAY EVE

Two men, one of them Charles Lawrence Boecklen of Chicago had a narrow escape from death by drowning or freezing Sunday when their open boat capsized while they were duck hunting on Lake Pistakee, adjoining Fox Lake. They were rescued by Herman Matheson, proprietor of the Matheson hotel on the shores of the lake, and Jacob Larson, a boat builder, who found them half frozen from exposure in the water. Boecklen, who is a member of Boecklen Bros., commercial artists, 417 South Dearborn street, and Joseph Franka who lives near the lake, were thrown out of their boat in a squall late in the afternoon. They clung to the bottom of the boat in an attempt to keep from drowning in the icy water.

They found it impossible to right the boat or to keep from slipping from its sides. Extending their arms across its bottom, they clasped hands and started to propel the boat toward shore. The waves that struck them covered them with water and in a short time a coat of ice had formed over the boat and their arms. In this condition they worked to get nearer the shore. They were sighted by Matheson and Larson, who immediately put out a boat and dragged them in.

ANTIOCH TOWN CAUCUS

One Hundred and Seven Votes Cast and a Lively Caucus Held Saturday

TWO TICKETS IN THE FIELD

For the Office of Supervisor a Lively Fight Was Waged Between E. L. Simons and B. F. Naber

The anticipation of many for a quiet town caucus turned out to be a scrap of the old fashion variety, not only on Supervisor, but for highway commissioner. Supervisor E. L. Simons was opposed by B. F. Naber, while five candidates were in the field for commissioner.

The roads could not have been in a worse condition but, nevertheless, 307 votes were cast, Simons and Naber trying for the office of Supervisor, a condition never known before in this town. Some of the anti-Simons faction had lead out the impression that he was in favor of building a new court house at an expense of $500,000 to the taxpayers of the County. This he denied most emphatically, but not soon enough to entirely overcome the sentiment that had been created against him.

However, he managed to hold his own strong enough to tie with his opponent. This condition of affairs required that each of the contestants should file nomination papers with the town clerk before twelve o'clock of the same night. (This they both did and the matter will be fought out at the polls on election day, April 1.)

Total number of votes cast were 307.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Lightnut, an American with an affected English accent, receives a present from a friend in China. The present proves to be a package containing a letter of surprise to the wearer. Lightnut dons the pajamas and late at night gets up for a smoke. His landlady, Jenkins, comes in and, failing to recognize Lightnut, attempts to put him out. Thinking the servant, Lightnut changes his clothes intending to summon help. When he reappears Jenkins falls on his neck with joy, confirming Lightnut's belief that he is crazy. Jenkins tells Lightnut of the encounter he had with a hideous Chinaman dressed in pajamas. In a message from his friend, Jack Billings, Lightnut is asked to put up "the kid" for the night on his way home from college. Lightnut finds a beautiful girl in black pajamas in his room. Lightnut is shocked by the girl's drinking, smoking and slinky talk. She tells him her name is Francis and puzzles him with a story of her love for her sister's room-mate, named Frances. Next morning the girl is missing and Lightnut hurries to the boat to see her off. He is accosted by a husky college boy, who calls him "Dicky," but he does not see the girl. Jack Billings calls to spend the night, with a package of pajamas. Priceless rubies hidden in the buttons of the pajamas. Billings dons the pajamas and retires. Lightnut discovers in his apartment a beefy person in nut-chop whiskers and wearing pajamas. Jenkins calls the police, who discover the intruder to be a criminal, called "Foxy Brandan." The intruder declares he is Lightnut's guest and appeals to the latter in vain. He is hustled off to jail. In the morning Lightnut is astonished to find Billings gone, and is astonished when he gets a message from the latter, demanding his clothes. Lightnut, bound for Tarrytown, Billings however, on the train. Lightnut speaks to her and alludes to the night before. She declares indignantly that Lightnut never saw her in black pajamas. At Tarrytown Francis is met by a husky college youth, who calls Lightnut as "Dicky." The latter ignores the boy, who then threatens to thrash him for offending Francis. Lightnut takes the next train home. Billings storms over the outrage of his arrest. He and Lightnut discover mysterious Chinaman characters in the train. Professor Doonberry is called in to interpret the hieroglyphics. He raves over what he calls the lost silk of St. Louis. The writing declares that a person wearing the pajamas will take on the semblance of the previous wearer. The professor borrows the pajamas for experiment. "Billings" dressed in pajamas is found in the professor's room. The professor is in an automobile with Francis and a woman. Lightnut calls "the frump." Lightnut is angered by Francis' slanderous talk about "Francis." "Billings" is taken to his room. A servant tells Lightnut that a message has just been received stating that Billings was under arrest in New York for stealing a suit of black pajamas. Judge Billings astonishes Lightnut with a tale of Francis' escapades. Lightnut asks permission to speak to "Francis." The judge declares that no other living person would tackle the job, and Lightnut, his mind occupied with the beautiful Francis, is greatly mystified. Policeman O'Keefe returns the black pajamas and Lightnut sends them to Billings' room. Lightnut has an interesting hour with Francis.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"Because You—Are You." Poor, brave-hearted girl! How pitiful and heartrending to a keen-eyed man of the world, seemed her poor, little sham about her father's trust in her! For I knew the facts, you know! And suddenly it came to me that I just couldn't and wouldn't let her go on this way, without the sympathy of the man she loved; without the precious consolation of knowing that he knew! She was being badgered and rough-shouldered and put upon and distrusted and maligned by every one she knew, and she had no one in all the world to turn to but me—and— Oh, I wanted her to know what I thought, don't you know! I slipped to the seat beside her. "Er, Miss Billings—" I began, thinking absent-mindedly of what I should say, and forgetting that we were quite alone. "Miss Billings! Why do you call me that? Her lovely brow puckered. "Remember, now, that's twice you—" "Frances, then!" I corrected softly. She straightened, her bosom lifting with a quick intake. By Jove, that was what she wanted! "Oh!" Then she leaned slowly back, looking at me thoughtfully through half-closed eyes, her lips parted in the oddest smile. And I screwed my monocle tight and let her have smile for smile, determined to chirp her up and make her feel our oneness—that sort of thing, you know. And I succeeded! For of a sudden her head went back and the joyous peal of her canary laugh started off the jolly birds in the trees above us. "Oh, you—" A stare, and then another burst as she bent forward, face buried in her hands. Then it lifted sharply, flame-eyed—her lips tremulous, her eyes shining like sapphire stars. "Oh!" she gasped, and how I envied the little hand she pressed against her waist; but the windows—dash the windows! "That's—that's it—Frances—just that much! But, do you know, I don't—don't believe you really know my full name. I remember now several times—" She bent toward me wistfully, her wide blue eyes challenging my candor. "Honestly, now—do you?" So it was that thought that was tickling her! Well, by Jove, I had her there, for I had heard the judge mention her name in full. I would surprise her! "Oh, don't!" I exclaimed, winking as I polished my glass. "Well, how about Frances Leslie Billings?" I let her have it slowly, distinctly, and with yet a note of triumph I could not altogether hide. And then remorseful for her amazed expression, I explained frankly: "Got it from your father this morning, don't you know, during our long talk about you in the library." "Wh—" Then she swallowed and her face fell perfectly blank. By Jove, I could have kicked myself for a jolly ass for breaking it to her so raw! Of course, she would know that if her father talked of her, it would be nothing for me to hear that was true or kind—nothing she could wish might be said to the man she loved. I hastened to reassure her: "But I don't believe a dashed word of anything he said about you—I spoke hotly—and I don't care a jolly hang for what the others said, either—so there you are!" "Oh, you don't?" Could tell how I had touched her by her expression, don't you know; and she fell to looking at me the queerest way. "And would you mind telling me who the 'others' are?" I eyed her gloomily, sympathetically. As if she didn't know already! "Well—oh, dash it, my mind has been filled with—er—just anything!" I began cautiously. "I know," she murmured as if to herself—"one can see that!" And she bit her lip. "In the first place, you know—and there I pulled up. No, dash it, I wasn't going to say a jolly word about poor Jack—no, sir! But then, about the other one—well, she was just a treacherous snake in the what's-its-name, and she ought to be exposed. By Jove, she should be!" "It's the frump, you know," I said indignantly. "The—what?" Her pretty teeth flashed like the keyboards of a tiny organ—you could even hear a little gurgly, musical quiver somewhere behind. And then I remembered that, of course, she wouldn't know whom I meant. "Oh, your guest, you know—your friend from school!" I went on, trying to tread cautiously and yet feeling myself growing red. "Oh, see here now, I don't like to say things, but—er—" "Oh, go on!" she trilled, her sweet face shining wistful. "Well, I mean this—er—Miss Kirkland; came out with us this morning, don't you know. I think of her as the frump—little idea—er—nick-name of mine, you know, she's so awful!" And I screwed my glass with a chuckle. For an instant I thought she wouldn't catch it, she stared at me so blankly. Then the joke of it—the jolly aptness, so to speak—got her full and square, and she just lifted a scream, hugging her knee and rocking back and forth, her face suffused, her laughter peeling like a chime of bells. And I just rocked, too, keeping her company. Really, I don't think I ever laughed so much since some chap plunked down on the hard crown of my new title last winter. At least I wanted to laugh—in church, you know, and it's so awful how you feel there when something—oh, you know! And if you could have seen that poor fellow's face!

By Jove, how glad I was for her jolly sense of humor that could see the point of things so quickly, and think them clever. Always had so dashed little patience with stupid people, don't you know. And just here another little thing came to me and I let her have it: "Oh, I say!" I leaned nearer, chuckling—"your father pretends to think her a most beautiful and winning girl—fancy!" And my face stretched itself in such a jolly grin that I could hardly hold my glass. She bent toward me, smiling adorably. "You mean this—er—Miss Kirkland?" I nodded choritously. She peered at me through her long what-you-call-'em—oh, such a way! "But you don't think so, do you?" How sweetly, how fetchingly she said it. "Me?" I gasped. By Jove, in my horror, I lost my grip upon my jolly grammar. "Oh, I say now! I think the frump—this Miss Kirkland, you know—is a fright—regular freak, dash it! I told the judge so!" "You—?" "Of course!" And I shrugged disgustedly, making the ugliest grimace I possibly could. "Why, dash it, if I were a woman and had a face like hers, I never would have left China, or England—or wherever her jolly home was—no, sir!" She caught her breath with a little gasp—then she was off again. This time she rested her arms upon the rail behind and buried her head in them, her lovely shoulders jiggling up and down, her sobbing laughter sending her off at last into a spell of coughing. "Oh!" she breathed, lifting at last her gloriously blushing face and dabbing at it with her ridiculous little handkerchief. "Oh, you'll kill me—I know you will!" I certainly had stirred her up, and I was delighted. It was funny to think of any one calling the frump beautiful—it must seem funnier still to her, of course—to Frances, I mean. Why, dash it, she seemed to find a funny side to it that I didn't, don't you know! "Tell me, now"—she clasped her knee, lifting her lovely face coaxingly—"tell me all that she said about me—everything!" And I did—every word, by Jove! And no one could look into that sweet, ingenuous face as I proceeded, and doubt that the slanders were new to her. Never a jolly one touched her—only you could see their absurdity amused her. Several times I had to pause as she bent under a gale of laughter. Only once was she brought up, shocked. "Oh!" she uttered faintly, as I came to the intimation about her being half-fellow-well-met with the footmen and her drinking and carousing with them and other men-servants until three in the morning. I realized that it wasn't the matter of the drinking that teased her and drew from her little gasps as I came to this—knew that didn't bother her, don't you know, for I knew she did drink—could drink, I mean to say; for I had not forgotten the two full whisky glasses of high-proof Scotch she had tossed off that night in my rooms. Why, no, dash it, she was able to drink—it went in the family! I could never forget with what pride she had told me of putting her brother Jack under the table two nights running. That was all right—it was the other part of the frump's scandal that brought her up, standing, so to speak. For now she really looked embarrassed, despite another lapse to laughter. Her face and neck were dyed a lovely crimson. "Oh, dear!" she said finally, and she wiped her eyes. "What you must think of me!"—and she looked away, a pretty frown contracting her face; then the jolly dimple deepened once again and she choked into her handkerchief. "Oh, dear!" she repeated, biting her lip to hold her quivering mouth corners. "Oh, it's a shame," I heard her mutter; "I mustn't let him—it's too—" She wheeled upon me, her lips tightened. "Oh!" she ejaculated sharply, almost petulantly, and her foot struck smartly on the boards. "Please!" Jove, how she said it!

"I wonder how much you think—think—" "Think little too as it tapped." "Well, I should think as much!" And this time her laugh was short—oddly constrained. She looked away off down the slope to the river. "Oh! This time it was a tiny gasp as of dismay. And the too tapped like an electric wheel—its name. "Yes," I said, watching it musingly. "I suppose it's because you're the only girl, don't you know, that I ever did think of before—oh, ever at all, dash it!" The toe stopped. I could feel her looking at me sideways, but I did not glance up, that I remember; was looking down, trying to get hold of a dashed idea I wanted to express. "Don't know," I continued, boring away at her toe, yet hardly seeing it, "but suppose that's the reason I knew all the time she was lying; but still, somehow that doesn't seem to be the real reason I knew. I think the real reason I knew it couldn't be and wasn't true was—I sighed heavily—"oh, dash it, it's so hard to get hold of the jolly thing!" And there was a pause. "The real reason?" her voice coaxed gently. "Was because—" Then she moved the toe and it put me out—"I think just because—oh, yes, I know now!" And I looked up eagerly. "Just because I knew that you—are you!" I finished beamingly. "Oh, I see!" She said it musingly, her finger lightly pressing upon her lips, her beautiful eyes studying me with the oddest, keenest side-glance. A pause; and then: "And how long have you known me, pray? Just a—" "A thousand years!" I said promptly and earnestly. "A thousand years and all my life, don't you know! Never will know you any better." "I wonder," she murmured, nodding slowly. And then for a moment she didn't say a word, just sat there looking me over curiously, her expression half shy, half quizzical, don't you know. Then her smile flashed again—a radiant, dazzling brightness that brought her nearer, like the effect of the sunlight's sudden gleam there at times upon the blue line of the "West Shore" away across the broad, three-mile span of the old Tappan Zee. "And now—" again her splendid young arms were clasped, wing-like, behind her head; and its golden glory hung like a picture against the dark vine leaves, bossed with the clustered purple flowers—"now," she repeated, settling comfortably, "you must just go on and tell me the rest—I can bear it! What did my—" her big blue eyes twinkled as she smiled—"my father say about me?" I shifted uncomfortably. "Oh, I can't, you know!" I demurred. "I say, what's the use, dash it?" Poor old boy, somehow I just hated to round on him—he was so jolly hard hit already; Jack, don't you know! Besides— "Please!" Jove, how she said it!

"Oh, dash it, I'm afraid it will hurt you," I protested uneasily; "and I don't think the judge really—" "I just don't care that—" a snap from her little fingers and her arm went back—"for anything he ever said about me that was meant! So, please go on—I must go dress for luncheon." And so I just took a deep breath, a long running leap, and cleared the bar—told her all, you know! (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Sold Wife to Friend. At the village of Utznach, Switzerland, the other day, a curious sale took place. With her own consent a woman was sold by her husband to another man, an Italian, and a friend of the Swiss couple. The price asked by the affectionate husband was four dollars. To further "legalize" the bargain, the Italian procured two witnesses to the transaction and had a contract written on stamped government paper.

BURNED AND ITCHED BADLY

639 Lincoln Park Blvd., Chicago, Ill. —"A year ago I received a very severe burn on my left arm. I caught cold in it and it was all sore and ulcerated. The sore was as large as a silver dollar. It was all red and inflamed and had pus running out of it. I suffered terribly from burning pain; could not sleep for two weeks it burned and itched so badly. I applied — Salve, — Salve and a salve my druggist recommended as his own, but got no relief. I then commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed the burned parts with Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment on a linen bandage. I got relief from the first, and my arm healed nicely. I was soon able to be at work again. Had I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment at first I would have avoided lots of suffering." (Signed) Harry Junke, Mar. 9, 1912.

ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF FARM BUILDINGS

A CRAFTSMAN HOUSE
by Stickley.

A ROOMY, COMFORTABLE FARM-HOUSE.

By K. J. T. EKBLAW, Agricultural Engineering, University of Illinois.

According to the census of 1912, the value of the farm buildings on all the farms in the United States is $6, $25,451,528. This is nearly one-sixth of the total value of all farm property, and were it not for the large farms and ranches of the west, which are equipped with comparatively cheap buildings whose value is very small in comparison with that of the farms upon which they are located, this fraction would have a much higher value.

On buildings of the ordinary type the depreciation is quite severe, and the expense of maintenance is correspondingly high; both will amount to at least 5 per cent. each year of the total value of the building, or something over $316,000,000. If, by using better materials and better types of construction, there can be erected at practically the same cost as inferior ones buildings that will reduce this enormous maintenance and depreciation expense by half, it is certainly desirable that advantage be taken of this opportunity for economy.

Economy and efficiency can be obtained by a proper arrangement of buildings with regard both to location on the farm and to their relation to each other. The farmstead proper should be located under the government of several factors—topography of the farm, accessibility to the highway, and proximity to the highway. Advantage should be taken of a high, well-drained site which will admit of good development, and which is not too far distant from the extreme limits of the farm, and which may be anywhere from 150 to 400 feet from the highway.

In the past by far the greater number of farm buildings have been constructed of wood, with little or no effective foundation. In some localities where stone is abundant this material was used to some extent; here and there is seen a brick structure.
On the whole, however, it is manifest that the average farmer did not build for permanence.

With the advent of cheap cement, every farmer in the country can erect structures that will endure almost indefinitely, and can do so at a cost which is often less than that of wood.
On these structures the depreciation is negligible, and the maintenance cost is a minimum. All the smaller buildings on a farm can be built of concrete, and while it may be impractical to use this material entirely in all cases for barns, cribs, residences, etc., yet it is so adaptable in various forms that it may be used almost anywhere. Large concrete buildings either of the block type or of monolithic, single or double wall, construction are common, and their cost compares very favorably indeed with that of wood structures.

The use of concrete in granary construction has met with considerable opposition among farmers, the objection being that the floors "drew dampness." This objection can be eliminated by putting a good base of cinders or screened gravel under the floor, to provide drainage, and making the floor itself impervious to moisture by means of a rich mixture of preferably by means of a waterproofing compound intimately mixed with the concrete. Such a floor is more resistant to moisture than any wood floor ever laid. For granaries in which the superstructure is of wood special studding sockets are on the market which admit of placing the studding directly on the floor without the use of a bolted sill. There has been devised, too, a special slotted concrete block for corn bin walls.

The stave silo is a structure which has outlived its usefulness except in cases where only a temporary silo is desired. The modern silo is built of solid reinforced concrete or of vitrified tile, at a cost but slightly above that of a stave silo, and its life is of almost indefinite duration.

The modern farm residence is not the ungainly square box which stands so forbiddingly and unprotected along the roadside, but is instead a well-designed, comfortable, attractive home, surrounded by carefully planted trees and shrubs. It is fitted with every modern convenience; it has hot and cold, hard and soft water available under pressure; it has a bathroom and a water closet connecting with a complete sewage disposal system; it has electricity for light and power. This house is built of concrete or of brick or of tile, and not only will the farmer enjoy its comforts himself, but his children and his children's children will live to reap the benefits which can be so easily provided.

"One day when I was the city edi-

"Mr. Editor—I sent you a turkey

Woman Is As Old As She Looks

No woman wants to look old. Many in their effort to look youthful resort to the "beauty doctor's" prescriptions. Their mistake is that they visit the wrong department in the drug store.

Beauty depends upon health.

Worry, sleepless nights, headaches, pains, disorders, irregularities and weaknesses of a distinctly feminine character in a short time bring the dull eye, the "crow's feet," the haggard look, drooping shoulders,
and the faltering step.

To retain the appearance of youth you must retain health. Instead of lotions, powders and paints, ask your druggist for

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Dog Meat in Germany.
The use of the flesh of dogs as a food for man is becoming common in Germany, even in the capital, Berlin. From necessity the German working-man has long made horse meat a substantial portion of his daily fare, but while Saxony consumes thousands of dogs annually the practice of eating this meat has not until recently invaded Prussia.

Simplicity and Depth.
Simplicity of character is the natural result of profound thought.—Hasselt.

TAUGHT HIM VALUE OF TIME

Customer of Benjamin Franklin Given Object Lesson by the Eminent Philosopher.

Benjamin Franklin sagely said: "Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of!" Franklin not only understood the value of time, but put a price upon it that made others appreciate its worth.

A man came in one day and picked up a book that he wished to purchase. The price that the clerk asked was not satisfactory. He insisted on seeing the proprietor.

Mr. Franklin hurried from the rear of the store at the clerk's summons.

"What is the lowest price you can take for this book, sir?" asked the customer leisurely.

"One dollar and a quarter," was the terse reply.

"One dollar and a quarter? Why, your clerk asked me only a dollar just now."

"True," said Franklin, "and I could better afford to take a dollar than leave my work."

Without another word the crestfallen purchaser laid the amount on the counter and left the store.

He had learned not only that he who squanders his own time is foolish, but he who wastes the time of others is a thief.

Sweet Thing.

"This piece of lace on my dress is more than fifty years old." "It's beautiful. Did you make it yourself?"

ALARM CLOCK OF NO AVAIL

Timepiece Did Its Duty, but Sound Simply Brought Familiar Phrase from Sleepy Operator.

In the telephone office there was one girl who was always late in the morning.

Time and again the local manager requested her to be more punctual, but her tardiness still continued, until he was moved to use desperate methods.

"Now, Miss ———," said he as he came to her exchange board one morning carrying a package in his hands, "I have a little scheme that I hope will induce you to arrive at the office in time. I have bought this fine alarm clock for you. Please promise me that you will make proper use of it."

The young woman promised, and the first night set the alarm at the required hour for rising the next morning.

At the indicated hour the clock set up a tremendous whirring, loud enough to awaken the whole house. But the sleepy little lassie turned over in bed, and said in her sweetest tone:

"Line's engaged; call again, please."

WILSON ISSUES CALL

PROCLAMATION OUT SUMMONING
LAWMAKERS TO CAPITAL
ON APRIL 7.

MESSAGE IS IN PREPARATION

President Will Point Out in Detail His Wishes as to the Tariff Specifically in His Forthcoming Document.

Washington, March 19.—President Wilson issued the formal proclamation Monday convening congress in extra session at noon April 7. The president's pronouncement was brief and followed form closely. It is stated merely that "whereas, public interests require" congress would be convened in extra session by order of the executive.

Originally Mr. Wilson had fixed April 1 as the date, Representative Underwood, the Democratic majority leader, having informed him that the tariff bills, to which it was agreed congress should have immediate attention, would be ready on that date. Mr. Underwood found, however, that the ways and means committee would need another week to draft the schedules and the date set was selected in deference to the wishes of Leader Underwood and house leaders.

The absence of any specific reason for the calling of the extra session is explained by the fact that Mr. Wilson's statement immediately after his election declared that he would call an extra session to revise the tariff.

President Wilson plans to point out specifically his wishes for the extra session in his first message, in preparation. This, it is known from talks the president has had with members of congress, will outline the administration's idea of how the tariff should be revised and just what schedules should be taken up.

The belief is general that the entire message will be taken up with a discussion of the tariff, except the last paragraph or two, which will draw attention to the need of currency legislation at the earliest possible moment and will indicate the intention of the president to send later a special message on that or other subjects which he believes should be considered by the new congress.

The tariff plan will be submitted first to a caucus and then directly to the house by the ways and means committee.

PUBLICITY ACT IS ENJOINED

Postmaster General Burleson Estopped by High Tribunal From Putting Law into Effect.

Washington, March 19.—The Supreme court granted a restraining order Monday to prevent Postmaster General Burleson from enforcing the newspaper publicity law while the court has under consideration the question of its constitutionality.

The injunction was granted upon a request made by Robert C. Morris, attorney for the New York Journal of Commerce, which has attacked the validity of the act. Postmaster General Burleson had notified him that newspapers which had not filed statements required by the law would be penalized. The Supreme court announced a recess to April 7 after March 24.

WON BY INSURGENTS

FEDERAL COMMANDER AT NO-GALES SURRENDERS TO REBELS.

Six Hundred Cavalrymen on Guard on Arizona Soil See Comrade and Others Wounded.

Nogales, Ariz., March 15.—After a terrific battle which lasted throughout the day the federal garrison at Nogales, Sonora, surrendered to General Obregon, the rebel commander, Thursday night at 6:40 o'clock. Late in the afternoon the federals were driven back from their outposts by a determined attack on the right front and extreme left trenches, the Huerta soldiers fleeing to the cover of the town. This was followed an hour later by their surrender. The fire on the American side was increased by the retreat and when a report reached Lieutenant Colonel Tate that one of his 600 troopers of the Fifth cavalry had been wounded, he hastily assembled his men. Orders had been received from Washington to withhold fire and these orders were obeyed all day.

Bullets rained on Nogales, Ariz., during the battle and created a critical international situation which has not been equaled since the battle of Juarez two years ago.

Three noncombatants were wounded on the American side and two women had narrow escapes from injury, one bullet piercing a woman's skirt while she was on the porch of her home. The killed and injured in the battle could not be learned, but the number is large.

In the meanwhile troops were rushed here from Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and Thursday night American troopers were on duty along the border.

'HUMAN FLY' HAS CLOSE CALL

Daredevil's Plan to Soar Into Sky Comes to Naught—800 Pounds of Powder Explodes.

New York, March 14.—A steel rocket containing Rodman Law, the "human fly," in which he intended to be shot 3,500 feet into the air descending by a parachute, exploded when 800 pounds of powder behind it was fired. Law was hurled 25 feet from his seat in the rocket, but was unhurt.

Protected by padding and a helmet, Law crawled into the rocket with his parachute, and gave the order to fire. The fuse was lighted and spluttered for 30 seconds. There was a burst of flame, a cloud of smoke and a terrific report. Hundreds of spectators saw the rocket leap forward a few feet and burst into fragments.

Law was hurled violently through the air and to the ground.

J. P. MORGAN AT ROME

HAS BAD SPELL WHILE ON BOARD STEAMER.

Financier Carried From Vessel to Train—Improves on Arrival in Eternal City.

Rome, March 14.—When J. Pierpont Morgan reached this city his relatives, friends and physicians who are traveling with him showed considerable anxiety over the condition of the New York financier's health.

Seized with a sudden weakening spell as he was about to disembark from the Adriatic at Naples, it became necessary for Mr. Morgan practically to be carried ashore by three persons and lifted aboard the train for Rome. So great was the concern of those around him that it was feared any thing might happen before Rome was reached, but fortunately the journey was made without recurrence of the symptoms. As an extra precaution to insure the comfort of the invalid, the special train costing $3,000 was made heavier by adding two cars to prevent jolting.

Mr. Morgan's installation at the Grand hotel here was attended by encouraging signs of improvement.

He is resting quietly, but under strict injunctions that the three weeks' stay here, which has been decided upon, shall be characterized by absolute repose, neither paying nor receiving calls. There is a constant stream of callers at the hotel leaving cards for Mr. Morgan, including the king's personal aide, government officials, diplomats and American tourists.

TROOPS AWE LYNCHING MOB

Three Militia Companies Guard Assailant of Young Girl in Salem (Ill.) Jail.

Salem, Ill., March 17.—The jail at Salem was guarded Friday night by three companies of militia. The state troops were ordered out by Governor Dunne in response to a message from Sheriff Charles W. Purcell of Marion county that he was unable alone to cope with a situation arisen through the arrest of Frank Sullens, white, twenty-one years old, charged with an attack on Dorothy, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Judge Charles Holt.

All afternoon an angry mob of men swarmed through the streets and several times were dispersed from in front of the jail by Sheriff Purcell and a number of specially sworn in deputies.

The mob, though threatening, lacked leaders, and was handled by Sheriff Purcell and his deputies, though late in the afternoon the sheriff appealed to the governor for assistance. Militia from Olney, Shelbyville and Elmhurst at once were ordered to Salem and later the company at Altamont was dispatched.

STORM KILLS MANY

TORNADO LEAVES PATH OF DEATH IN WESTERN AND SOUTHERN STATES.

PROPERTY LOSS IS $3,000,000

Blizzards Accompanied by Snow and Rain Cause Death and Destruction
Over Five States—Trans-Missouri Country Overwhelmed.

St. Louis, March 17.—Causing loss of life and great property damage a huge storm spread over the entire middle west, the Rocky mountain region, the south and the southeast, Friday.

In the middle west and the southern states the storm took the form of winds of high velocity.

A conservative estimate places the number of dead in the southern states and lower middle west at fifty, with not fewer than 200 injured and a property loss of $3,000,000 or more.

Following is a summary by states of some of the more important damage done by the wind storm:

Georgia—Five missing near Atlanta. Heavy damage at Columbus. Cardinal baseball players in storm, but none is injured.

Missouri—One probably fatally and several seriously hurt in Montgomery county. Large property damage.

Tennessee—Twelve reported killed in towns wrecked by tornado, many injured. Property damage great.

Louisiana—Four killed, 30 injured. In Provencal, Natchitoches parish, and district south of Fisher, Sabine parish. Property loss, $50,000 in Provencal, and other districts suffer greatly.

Texas—One killed, several injured, and property loss of $100,000 to Brookeland.

Omaha, Neb., March 17.—The entire trans-Missouri country from the river to the Rocky mountains had for twenty-four hours Friday night been in the grip of the worst spring storm ever known in this territory. Not a freight train was in operation between Omaha and the mountains Friday, half the telephone and telegraph wires were down, passenger trains were from four to ten hours late, and general business was suspended. The temperature was only just below freezing, but a fifty-mile wind was filled with snow, and plows were in service on all lines.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 17.—Twenty persons were killed or seriously injured by a destructive cyclone here Friday. The property damage is very heavy.

With Heavy Truck.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—Madame Sarah Bernhardt, the world-famous actress, had both ankles sprained in an automobile accident in Pico Heights, on the outskirts of the city Wednesday when her machine, in which she was being driven to the Orpheum theater from Venice, collided with a heavy truck and was badly wrecked. Madame Bernhardt was thrown out and in addition to suffering sprains of both ankles, was considerably bruised. Despite her injuries she proceeded in another automobile to the theater, and rather than disappoint the large audience, rehearsed her full program.

WOMEN ARE MOBBED

10,000 LONDON RIOTERS IN BIT-TER ATTACK ON MRS. DRUM-MOND AND AIDS.

DRAG THEM THROUGH STREET

Hoodlums Attack Suffragettes, Blacken Their Eyes and Tear Their Dresses Despite Efforts of Police to Protect Them.

London, March 18.—Ten thousand persons, with copies of the Referee, a Sunday journal, still damp with the printer's ink, in their hands, in which was exposed an alleged plan on the part of suffragettes to kidnap David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, mobbed the advocates of equal suffrage who attempted to hold a meeting in Hyde park Sunday.

The women were pelted with clods of dirt, oranges and other missiles, and when the police were escorting them from the scene the rioters tore off their hats and cloaks and even struck some of them in the face.

For two hours the park, where demonstrations until recently were held in peace, and Oxford street, near by, were the scenes of wildest disorder.

The trouble began when "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond mounted a wagon and started to speak to the great assemblage, which was largely made up of youths, who had armed themselves with ammunition of various descriptions or with trumpets, mouth organs and bells. Her appearance at the front of the platform was the signal for an outburst of deafening noise and a bombardment of missiles. She hardly had uttered a word when a clod of turf struck her in the mouth.

Mrs. Drummond maintained her good nature, smiled at her tormentors and continued her speech amid a veritable tornado of abuse, cat-calls, ragtime choruses and cries of "Go home to your children."

For half an hour the crowds shouted, sang and pelted the suffragette commander-in-chief, whose clothes soon were a mass of mud. At last Mrs. Drummond's speech came to an end and a younger woman took her place. She fared no better, and the police, realizing the danger the women were in, called upon the chairman to close the meeting.

The police endeavored to pilot the women to the tube station, but the crowd brushed them aside and dragged the women up and down the street. In the melee one woman's eye was blackened and the clothes of all were torn and disheveled.

One of the speakers, a Miss Rogers, collapsed as she was being escorted from the park, and her clothes were on the point of being torn from her when the police succeeded in rescuing the woman.

It was a regular stand-up fight between the police and the crowds.

$300,000 ROBBERY IN N. Y.

Robbers Overlook $500,000 in Jewels and Negotiable Bonds Lying Close at Hand.

New York, March 18.—The finding of a strange key in the lock of a cellar door at No. 60 Eldridge street Sunday led to the discovery of the biggest robbery in New York city since the burglary of the Manhattan bank more than a quarter of a century ago. The amount stolen is roughly estimated to be between $250,000 and $300,000, while a half million more in jewels and negotiable bonds was not taken, probably because the safe blowers could not carry the plunder away. The place entered and robbed was Martin Simons & Son's pawnshop at 94 Hester street. Simons is the largest pawnbroker on the East side and with perhaps two exceptions the largest in the city. The property stolen for the most part was diamonds and jewelry set with diamonds.

GUNBOAT SMITH WHIPS WELLS

Navy Boxer Knocks Out England's Heavyweight Champion in Second Round in New York.

New York, March 15.—A new heavyweight champion came to town on Friday. His name is "Gunboat" Smith, a sturdy son of the United States navy. In less than two rounds he laid low Bombardier Wells, champion of England. Three times Smith beat Wells to the mat. Twice Wells took the count of nine, but the third time he dropped the Englishman was unable to respond. He was dead to the world and had to be carried to his corner by Referee Joh and his seconds.

A terrific right swing to the jaw automatically gave Smith a claim to the English title. The punch knocked Wells flat on his face. He lay sprawled out like a man nailed head and foot to the floor.

The knockout came after one minute and 17 seconds of fighting in the second round.

Universal Hero.
For America, at least, there is the one universal hero. No one questions his greatness. None names him but to praise.

Who is this universal hero?
Is it Napoleon? Many condemn him, as Ingersoll did, as the "imperial personification of force and murder." No, it is not Napoleon.

Washington, then? Wendell Phillips said: "But the great Virginian held slaves." So, even Washington had his detractors.

Lincoln? Perhaps later on; but not yet.

Well, who is this universal hero of America?
John Hampden, of course. He objected to paying taxes.—Kansas City Times.

Anyhow, Boy Had the Right Idea.
An overgrown schoolboy who found English grammar entirely beyond him was given the sentence "The girl purchased a hat" to diagram.

"Now, of what word is 'hat' the object?" asked the teacher encouragingly.

"Hat is the object of girl," stammered the youth.

"Perhaps you're right," replied the teacher.

IN A SHADOW.
Inveterate Tea Drinker Feared Paralytic.

Steady use of either tea or coffee often produces alarming symptoms as the poison (caffeine) contained in these beverages acts with more potency in some persons than in others.

"I was never a coffee drinker," writes an ill woman, "but a tea drinker. I was very nervous, had frequent spells of sick headache and heart trouble, and was subject at times to severe attacks of bilious colic."

"No end of sleepless nights—would have spells at night when my right side would get numb and tingle like a thousand needles were pricking my flesh. At times I could hardly put my tongue out of my mouth and my right eye and ear were affected."

"The doctors told me I was liable to become paralyzed at any time, so I was in constant dread. I took no end of medicine—all to no good."

"The doctor told me to quit using tea, but I thought I could not live without it—that it was my only stay. I had been a tea drinker for twenty-five years; was under the doctor's care for fifteen."

"About six months ago, I finally quit tea and commenced to drink Postum."

"I have never had one spell of sick headache since and only one light attack of bilious colic. Have quit having those numb spells at night, sleep well and my heart is getting stronger all the time." Name given upon request.

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers everywhere.

OBITUARY

In connection with weeks of illness, the cause of which was lagrippe, Mr. J. G. Rowling suffered a stroke of paralysis some two weeks ago and from it he never rallied, his death taking place on Saturday last.

Joseph G. Rowling born Dec. 8, 1833, Manlius, Onondago county, New York. He came to Lake county, Illinois, with his parents when he was 14 years old, they came all the way by water and landed at Little Fort (now Waukegan.) His father was a miller on Fox River, after living there two years his father died. The remainder of the family then moved to Avon center and remained there until he married Miss Margaret Ball on March 6, 1859, going immediately to Kansas, where they lived 28 years. Two children were born to this union.

He enlisted for service in the State Militia but was honorably discharged at the end of thirty days. He lived in Illinois and Kansas when each state was admitted to the Union.

His wife died June 15, 1869. She was buried in Oscaloosa, Kansas.

He was again married to Mrs. Jane Millard on October 12, 1871, who died on November 28, 1889, at the age of 56, she was also buried in Oscaloosa, Kansas.

He came here, accompanied by his son Lincoln in 1890.

He was married to Mrs. Hattie Richards in 1897, who now survives. His two children survive him. Lincoln of Eugene, Oregon, and Mrs. Lucy Edmonds of McLouth, Kansas. He has eleven grand children and six great grand children, two brothers John of Lake Villa, and Edwin of Grayslake and a sister Mrs. Jane Hook of Lake Villa.

He was converted in Kansas and he joined the M. E. church at Lake Villa, in June 1892. He was a man of devout christian character, and tried to reflect glory to his Master. In his home life he was kind and loving and often used to sing his favorite hymn, "Take me as I am." He died as he had lived trusting his Savior to the end.

The funeral services were held on Monday and the remains, accompanied by his wife were taken to Oscaloosa, for burial.

It is possible that the riddle of the Polish temperament is humorously revealed in the following story, which was gleaned from Mr. Edmund Gosse's volume of literary reminiscences entitled "Two Visits to Denmark."

A professor from the University of Cracow visited Cambridge. The late Prof. Henry Sidgwick showed the guest the youth of the place disporting itself on the cricket field and in the boats.

The Polish visitor made no comment, and was indeed so reserved that Professor Sidgwick felt obliged to say:

"You have nothing like this at the University of Cracow?"

"At the University of Cracow," the professor replied, "we hygienate with the bal masque" (masked ball)—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

FOUGHT FIERCELY OVER PUP REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

Two Small Boys and Street Cur Fought Amusement for Brokers on Wall Street.

Two dirty, ragged little boys and a dirty, ragged white pup created a lot of fun in Wall street the other day. Just where they came from and how such an odd trio ever found its way to the heart of the New York financial district were mysteries which none cared about so long as the joy of watching their antics. The pup, it seems, was the bone of contention between the youngsters, each having a perfectly good claim to it, which he asserted with might and main. The first seen of them was when a wild-eyed little dog, with the "kicks" in pursuit, came running toward Wall street from the direction of the curb market. A passing truck blocked the pup's progress, and both children fell upon it. Each sought to bear it away in a different direction, until it seemed that each would have to satisfy himself with an end of the dog. Equally matched in strength, the youngsters made no headway, so with one accord they let go of the dog and sought to rend each other. The pup took advantage of the fight to lunge toward Broadway, and it was half-way there before the boys discovered its absence. Abandoning their difficulties they set out in pursuit. A large crowd followed, and when the dog was hauled back the same performance was gone through again. After this had been repeated half a dozen times, and the whole Wall street district had been covered, an officer of an animal society appeared and took the cur. The dog and the crowd thus won—but the "kicks" lost.
